Education budget increases 10.6%

Property owners in Haliburton County will be paying an average of 10.6% more for education this year. The increase was confirmed Tuesday evening as the Haliburton County Board of Education endorsed a budget totalling $10,005,000.

Of this amount, the provincial Ministry of Education will contribute some $3,581,000 leaving the local taxpayers to be assessed directly for $6,284,000.

Among the areas of significant increase, is a $135,000 expenditure at the high school. The funding will be used to re-equip a number of classrooms.

Other significant expenditure increases are: $100,000 to be used for retirement benefits; $100,000 for the purchase of new computers; $72,000 for the hiring of five additional teachers; $37,000 for supply teachers; $32,000 for the installation of two portable classrooms at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden; $19,000 additional to support the implementation of the recommendations of the curriculum co-ordinator; $15,000 for the installation of a word processor at the school board office and $15,000 for computer equipment at the high school office. The budget will also see an overall 28% increase in instructional supplies, mostly related to the use of photocopiers throughout the school system.

While the local board's budgetary effort, resulted in what would have been a 9.9% increase in expenditure for the year, it was pointed out that provincial assistance has not matched the growth of the overall requirements for the elementary and secondary schools. When the needs exceed the pre-determined limits set by the province, the excess must be generated through property taxes, without the benefits of provincial subsidy.

Computers are slowly making their way into the elementary schools in Haliburton County. Students at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden have been learning how to work with ICON computers. For a report on how the students are using the computer, see page 7.

Members of the Minden Fire Department hose down the charred remains of a storage shed and workshop at Hospitality Inn. The building was destroyed in a Monday morning fire which resulted in the loss of the South Lake resort's yard maintenance equipment and other supplies. See additional photos on pages 5 and 13.

Police chase cigarette thieves

The search continues for two men involved in an incident early Thursday morning that began with a break-in at the Haliburton IGA and ended in a high speed chase. No arrests have been made.

IGA owner Chuck O'Neil said Thursday afternoon that the thieves took only cigarette cartons from his store but he estimated the value of the stolen property at "well into the thousands of dollars."

The police were alerted at about 2:15 a.m. by neighbours who awoke when the two men broke the glass entrance doors to the grocery store with bricks.

The thieves entered the store and cleared all the cigarette cartons at the check-out counters into garbage cans. They emptied the cartons into the trunk of a black sportscar which was backed up to the store entrance. The pair were gone in minutes.

Police arrived at the IGA to find a trail of broken glass, scattered cigarette cartons and two empty garbage cans.

The officer investigating the case, Constable Bill Clendenning, said that a black sports car driven by the two men, had been sighted by police at about 2:30 a.m. near Carnarvon and was chased south on Highway 35.

Clendenning said the car was pursued at "speeds above the normal limit" but that police were unable to stop it.

This is the fourth major break-in and theft in Haliburton County since the beginning of April.

On April 22, thieves stole several hundred dollars from the Kozy Korner restaurant in Haliburton Village. On the night of April 18, the Minden Valu-mart was broken into and robbed of an undisclosed amount of money.

Earlier in the month both the Cardiff post office and the Kimount Legion were also robbed.

Chuck O'Neil said he wasn't surprised the thieves took only cigarettes. They are a high-priced and relatively small article for which there is a good market in Toronto, he explained.

He said "It would appear the whole thing was well thought out. They knew exactly what they were after and were gone in a couple of minutes."

The thieves apparently were not worried about the noise they made. No attempt was made to stifle the sound of breaking glass and the driver screeched his tires as he left.

The tire marks in front of the IGA entrance were still visible the following afternoon.

"It's hard to describe the way I feel about the break in," O'Neil said. "I feel violated...it was a frustrating experience."

The police are still investigating the incident.

Board backs ACLD summer program

Following a presentation from Dawn Brohman, the president of the Haliburton County Association for Children with Learning Disabilities, the Haliburton County Board of Education has approved the allocation of $500 to the group's summer camp program.

The ACLD president told the trustees that the camp was created to provide the ages 5 to 10 students with a stimulating environment during the summer holidays, in the hope that skills acquired during the previous school year will not be lost during the break. She explained that all students need the benefit of review in September when classes resume, however students with learning disabilities tend to fall farther behind and have greater difficulty keeping pace with the other students.

By providing a stimulating experience for six weeks of the summer break, she said the group hoped to overcome this situation. As well, the camp provides a setting where these students can boost their own self-esteem and foster social competence. She emphasized the learning program is integrated into a "fun" atmosphere.

The camp takes place at the Victoria Street School in Haliburton. Students from the Minden area attend two days a week, with students from the Haliburton area attending two days a week. The two groups combine on Friday of each week for special activity day.

The president noted that the salary for the four staff members is covered by a

Advertising costs surprise council

Concern was expressed at the April 28 Lutterworth council meeting when it was learned that the township was being charged $858 for four advertisements council had placed in the Toronto Star.

In the April 11 edition of the newspaper and again in the April 18 edition, two ads appeared announcing vacancies for a tax collector and a clerk-treasurer in Lutterworth.

The new tax collector will receive a salary of $6.73 an hour to start. No decision has yet been made on the salary of the new clerk-treasurer.

Council set up two committees to fill the positions. Councillor Lisa Mercer was chairman of both.

Mercer admitted a mistake had been made in placing the ads in the Toronto Star. "If we'd known beforehand how much they were going to cost, I don't think we would have done it," she said.

She explained that advertisements had also been placed in both Haliburton County papers. But council wanted to fill the positions quickly so the four ads were placed in The Star in the hope of generating a larger response, she said.

Lutterworth does not usually advertise jobs in Toronto newspapers.

In fact, Mercer said, her committees were much happier with the replies they received from people who had seen the advertisements in the Minden Times and the Haliburton County Echo.

Acid rain report

The following precipitation event was recorded at the Ministry of Environment acid rain testing station in Dorset. The information is compiled by Environment Canada. There was only one rainfall during the latest reporting period:

- on April 23, 2 mm of rain, pH 3.5 from central Quebec, eastern southern and central Ontario.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

Board eligible for capital assistance

It was announced last week that the Haliburton County Board of Education will be eligible to receive financial assistance from the provincial government for a number of major capital expenditures in the next few years.

According to an announcement, the board will receive support on the expenditures of up to $1,025,000 for a major addition to the high school. The proposed addition would house a new resource centre and library for the school.

Other expenditures approved for this board area included $48,000 for a new roof for the Cardiff school and $14,000, to replace a section of the Dorset school roof.

Education Director Stuart Baker noted that the figures quoted in the announcement represented the maximum amount the province was willing to provide assistance for. He pointed out that the degree of provincial support has yet to be announced.

"I am particularly pleased with the speed with which these projects were approved by the province,"

Baker said. The request for the special capital expenditures was submitted last fall.

He noted the funds will be made available in 1988 and that work on the high school addition might not be underway until the following year.

Province provides road grants

A series of provincial grants to assist road construction in the Highlands has been announced. Victoria-Haliburton MPP John Eakins made the list of recipient municipalities public last week.

The grants are being made through the Ministry of Transportation and Communications and are in addition to the support the ministry already provides to the municipalities. Over $600,000 in supplementary funding grants were awarded by the provincial government in this riding. Among those awarded to municipalities in the Highlands are:

- $37,400 to the municipality of Anson, Hindon and Minden for construction work on Scotch Line Road.

- $30,600 to Cardiff Township to assist in the purchase of a grader.

- $53,600 to Glamorgan Township for street reconstruction in Gooderham.

- $45,900 to the township of Monmouth for the purchase of a plough truck.

- $24,000 to Snowdon Township to assist in the purchase of a loader-backhoe.

- $15,000 to the township of Sommerville for the resurfacing of the Burnt River Road.

- $63,900 to Stanhope Township for the purchase of a grader.

Other grants under the MTC supplementary program were made to municipalities in other parts of the riding.

In addition to the grants mentioned above, the township of Glamorgan also received an additional $6,600 under a special program known as the Ontario Municipal Improvement Fund. This money will be used for the paving of streets in Gooderham.

Brohman to be new HHSS V-P

Gary Brohman has been named the new vice principal of Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. The appointment was confirmed by the Haliburton County Board of Education Tuesday evening.

Mr. Brohman was one of five teachers from HHSS to apply for the position.

At the moment, two administrators share the vice principal duties at the high school. This arrangement has been in place for the past two years.

The board recently decided to assign the administrative position to a single individual.

Mr. Brohman is currently head of the boy's physical education department. He has taught at the school for 15 years, all at HHSS.

He assumes his new responsibilities at the beginning of September.

A helping hand

As individuals, we often harbour a sense of frustration over our apparent inability to have a meaningful impact on global events. Phenomena like acid rain, the arms race, massive starvation and the senselessness of war appear to be beyond our control.

For most people outraged by such events, the only action available to them is writing letters. While letter writing should not be dismissed as an ineffectual activity it usually only achieves the desired results when many individuals, from a variety of backgrounds make their feelings known through this medium.

It is encouraging, therefore, to see three area citizens who have gone beyond writing letters, and who have taken steps to improve the lot of others in this world. We refer to David Phillips and Gerry Feltham, featured in this week's newspaper and Elgin Stouffer, who will be the subject of an article in next week's edition.

All have gone off to the third world countries to share their knowledge, expertise and resources. Dave Phillips and Gerry Feltham are currently in Nicaragua helping to construct a home for a family in that country. Elgin Stouffer has recently returned from a six week stay in Peru where he assisted in the establishment of sawmills and offered advice in the harvesting of that nation's vast forest resources.

In doing so, they have demonstrated that with some ingenuity and perseverance, it is possible to reach out directly and have a hand in the course of events around the world. But, perhaps more importantly, their actions will have established an important international one-to-one relationship that lets those involved know these are individuals who are aware of their problems, who care, and are willing to help.

All of us may not be able to reach out as dramatically and as personally as these three individuals have. But that doesn't mean we should abandon the ideals that have motivated these three. Writing letters, contributing resources, participating in fund-raising events, like the Walk for Water...there is a multitude of ways we can participate.

We congratulate those who, in any way, take action to alleviate the problems of fellow inhabitants of this planet earth.

A sure sign of spring

Highway heroes

- by Arthur Black -

As I type these words, Rick Hansen's round the world Odyssey is almost over and I'm glad, for a number of reasons.

I'm glad that a man who has wheeled his chair over blank miles of roads in blank countries will be able to wake up in his own bed and not face another day of loose gravel, bone-jarring potholes, sore arms and several hours of sucking in auto exhaust.

I'm glad for Rick Hansen's mom who will know, for the first time in blank years, that her boy is home safe, and not rocketing down some mountain road in a faraway land at the mercy of poor medical facilities, quirky governments and sneak thieves prepared to steal anything from baseball caps to wheelchair parts.

I'm glad for all the doctors and scientists involved in spinal injury research who have received a multi-million dollar shot in the arm thanks to Rick Hansen's efforts.

I'm glad for all the wheelchair-bound people everywhere who can now point to Rick Hansen and say "See? We're not vegetables. People in wheelchairs can do things that you folks with four sound limbs wouldn't dream of tackling. Show some respect!"

Finally I'm glad for the rest of us that Rick Hansen's trip is coming to an end, because maybe now we can spend a little time relaxing without worrying what's coming down the Trans Canada next.

Don't get me wrong...I love a parade as much as the next person, but these cross-Canada crusades are getting just a touch out of hand.

When Terry Fox tried it, it was an impossible, glorious dream. Steve Fonyo proved it could be done with one good leg. Rick's proved it's achievable in a wheelchair...now could we just give the entire concept a rest?

There are veritable swarms of special interest would-be media darlings walking, jogging, hopping, cycling, pogo-sticking and otherwise propelling themselves along the shoulder of the Trans-Canada highway. It's most un-Canadian.

If it was happening south of the border it wouldn't be worth mentioning. I mean, a few years ago, a Baptist lay preacher by the name of Hans Mulliken crawled 1600 miles from Marshall, Texas, to the White House in Washington. Back in 1980 a guy covered the 3,008 miles between Los Angeles and Bowen, Kentucky wearing a pair of stilts. In 1984 two women ran from Boston on the east coast to L.A. on the west, wearing out twelve pairs of shoes apiece in the process -- heck, way back in 1931 an American by the name of Plennie Wingo took a year and a half off work and walked from Santa Monica, California to Istanbul in Turkey.

Backwards!

But all of the above occurred as I say, south of the border. We expect that kind of loony obsession with trivialities from our American cousins.

But here? In cautious, good, grey Canada? Never.

And yet it's happening. Right at this moment on the shoulder of some highway or byway, somewhere between the wheatfields of Manitoba and the rugged crags of the Rockies a man in a kilt and sporran is plodding towards the sunset.

The man's name is Daniel Smith and as he walks he plays...the bagpipes. Smith has been zig-zagging across North America, puffing and wheezing on his musical instrument of torture for the past two years. Why the bagpipes? Well, Smith is of Scottish descent and he wanted something to do while he strolled across the continent. "I wanted to play something more melodic," said Smith. "I often wish it wasn't something

Editor:

If what I suspect is true, the banks will control a substantial amount of Canadian farmland, thereby controlling food prices.

Structurally sound thinking demands attention to this matter.

Our politicians command and receive fantastic amounts of money to administer the government. When they fail - we, the electorate, can oust them however the damage they have done may take years to correct.

As a citizen, and one who wishes a firm foundation for our children, I believe it is criminal and suicidal to allow these institutions, "at their pleasure" to absorb land owned by farmers.... after all they are directed by wheat, egg, milk (etc) boards. These people's livings are directed by the above mentioned. They should not be ostracized.

By the middle of April, the boisterous gang of redpolls, chickadees and goldfinches has thinned out or moved on. A good thing, because that feeder has to come down, especially after you gave your head that nasty whack against it while you were raking up the mountains of sunflower husks. Now a shy crowd is using the corners of your garden to rest and feed.

Early in April, a hermit thrush, soberly-clad relative of the robin, investigated my leafmould pile for insects. I saw him only because he was sitting twitching his fox-red tail; otherwise his olive back and lightly spotted breast blended with the shadows. Look for him at the back of the garden among last year's leaves, or under the shelter of thick bushes or evergreens.

Some mild evening, just at dusk, you may hear the lovely plangent falling notes of the veery. Another thrush like the robin, the veery shares with the woodthrush and the brown thrasher a warm fox-red back.

Our economic future

by Bill Kulas

Last week I spoke of the plight facing Canadian farmers. Farm foreclosures that rocked Canadian farmers during the recession years from 1980 to 1982, may be returning. In Ontario, according to George McLaughlin, chairman of Ontario's farm debt review board, one in five farmers may have to leave their land over the next five years.

Not only are farmers facing bankruptcy, so are Canadian consumers. Consumer bankruptcies have made economic forecasters cautious regarding the continued Canadian economic recovery. For the first three months of this year, consumer bankruptcies are up a staggering 30 per cent over last year.

Some economists believe that the sudden surge in personal bankruptcies is an indication that the credit backed rise in consumer spending may be coming to an end. It seems that many people have just over-extended themselves to a point where their only recourse is bankruptcy.

The increase in bankruptcies comes at a time when consumers are being squeezed by significantly higher taxes and have to dig deeper into their pockets to finance a wide variety of purchases.

Another matter that will complicate the economic situation of many is higher interest rates. Last Thursday the prime rate rose again for the fourth straight week. A trend that may continue, maybe?

On April 21, three major Canadian lenders raised their mortgage rates. Why are interest rates suddenly shooting back up? The main reason being the intervention by the Bank of Canada in order to prop up the Canadian dollar's decline against the U.S. dollar. Two weeks ago, Japanese investors started to sell off Canadian bonds on the money markets. The downward pressure from the Japanese selling Canadian bonds, combined with higher interest rates in the U.S. would have dragged our Canadian dollar down if the Bank of Canada had not stepped in.

According to George Saba, chief economist at Montreal Trust, "The flood gates could break open very soon and borrowing costs head up sharply if the dollar continues to weaken."

Canadian consumers will be the big losers if the central bank is continually forced to defend the dollar because its strategy would surely mean higher across the board interest rates in order to attract foreign investors to Canada.

I continue to be optimistic about our economy, but my views aren't shared by everyone. What do you think...are hard times ahead? Share your view with us. Write, c/o the Editor.

Challenging the incinerator

- by John Eakins, MPP -

As I have stated many times in this column, the protection of our Environment is one of the top priorities of our government.

We have been making improvements in this area using several methods. Recently, my colleague, the Honourable Jim Bradley, Minister of the Environment announced that the Province of Ontario has filed suit in a Michigan court to require installation of state-of-the-art pollution control technology in Detroit's new garbage burning incinerator.

The incinerator, as designed, will unnecessarily emit tonnes of particular matter and other contaminants that would be carried over Windsor and other parts of southwestern Ontario.

The $470 million incinerator in Detroit is designed to burn nearly 2,000 tonnes of trash daily. It is scheduled to go into operation in 1989. The site is about five kilometres (three miles) from the Windsor shoreline.

Mr. Bradley said Ontario wants the court to order that the incinerator be equipped with acid-gas scrubbers and baghouse filters.

Ontario took this action after the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) withdrew its efforts to impose the state-of-the-art technology for sulphur dioxide control last September.

The City of Detroit said it would be too expensive estimating the costs at $17 million capital and $8 million a year to operate the better pollution control technology.

Beginning in December 1986, my colleague informed the Mayor of Detroit of his concern for the province, given that the incinerator will emit pollution in the form of acid gases and heavy metals as well as dioxins and furans.

Mr. Bradley pointed out that Ontario's two most recent energy-from-waste (EFW) plants -- the Victoria Hospital and 3M facilities, both in London -- will incorporate a dry scrubber and a baghouse. This is a requirement on all new municipal EFW facilities in Ontario.

"I had hoped the Detroit authorities would show similar consideration for their environment as well as ours," said Mr. Bradley. "Now we will take our concerns to court."

I feel it is unfortunate that our government has to take these steps to protect the environment here in Victoria-Haliburton and throughout the province.

so loud."

A sentiment no doubt heartily shared by the citizenry of the many towns and hamlets he's piped himself through.

But Daniel Smith isn't alone on the road out there. Any day now he'll draw abreast of a man heading the other way. That'll be Bill Sharpe, a 65-year-old millwright from Pine Falls, Manitoba. Bill's got his wife Marion tooting along in the family Winnebago just behind him. They hope to reach Grand Falls, Newfoundland before the snow flies in the fall.

Purpose of Bill Sharpe's trip?

To promote the Canadian forest industry.

Bill says Canadians don't appreciate the importance of our trees.

Well...that's true. But with all due respect, Bill, what has walking across the country got to do with forest consciousness?

I mean, where does this end? Will soap manufacturers sponsor a long distance runner to jog across the country promoting awareness of Ring Around The Collar? Can we expect to see sinewy-legged marathoners in gym shorts traversing our Dominion to awaken a slumbering populace to the threat of athlete's foot?

I have to run now. I'm in training for my own cross country trek. I'm trying to stir up national concern about the scandalous state of my personal finances.

All donations gratefully accepted. Tax receipts on request.

Lake levels rise

- by Bill Scott, MP -

Following years of above average precipitation, Great Lakes water levels exceeded all-time highs throughout much of 1985 and 1986. Near-normal precipitation in 1986 itself has resulted in a moderate improvement on the upstream lakes -- Lake Superior is now more than half a foot below levels of a year earlier, and levels on Lakes Michigan-Huron are showing a downward trend. Massive amounts of water already in the system, however, must still move through the lower lakes. Even with normal precipitation, dangerously high levels will persist on Lakes Michigan-Huron, St. Clair and Erie for at least another two to three years.

Efforts are being made to relieve the main bottlenecks in the system, the Niagara River and, to a lesser extent, the St. Lawrence River, in order to accelerate drainage of the lower lakes. Second priority is being given to longer-term solutions. These focus on improved shoreline management - a provincial responsibility - as recommended by six international, federal-provincial and other major studies carried out in the past 35 years.

The following actions are being taken by the federal Minister of the Environment

1. Reassurance of Environment Canada's support for International Joint Commission (IJC) studies. Under the recent reference from the Canadian and U.S. government, the IJC currently has eight task forces examining a range of possibilities for using existing facilities to ease the problem of high water levels. The federal government is encouraging the Commission to report on these matters as soon as possible.

2. The Minister has written to the Province of Ontario to press for the early removal of land-fill encroachments in the Niagara River at Fort Erie and for assurances that such land fills will not continue.

3. The Minister has requested the Secretary of State for External Affairs to make representations to the Government of the United States, with a view to immediately increasing the total Niagara River outflow from Lake Erie by using the Black Rock Canal lock situated in New York State.

4. The Minister is urging the appropriate authorities to maintain maximum possible flows out of Lake Erie through the Welland Canal and out of Lake Ontario through the St. Lawrence River.

5. The Minister has urged the Ontario Minister of Natural Resources to reconsider his position on the Ogoki and Longlac diversions, which are under provincial jurisdiction, so that governments will be able to respond immediately to IJC recommendations on water diversions that may emerge later this year.

6. The Minister, together with the Secretary of State for External Affairs and the Ontario Minister of Natural Resources, will develop a co-ordinated federal-provincial position on the

from the chamber

by Shawn Hagerman

The board had the pleasure of meeting at Brian and Charlotte Watt's on Pine Lake in West Guilford. Brian and Charlotte along with their daughter and son-in-law, Anne and Gary Urquhart have done extensive renovations to Rip's Sleepy Hollow over the last several years. There is now a licensed dining room facility along with an outside patio area.

First on our agenda was the 1987-88 budget. This was year two of the three year Tourism Promotion and Community Service Agreement, that we have with the county. It was passed with several amendments, we will be keeping the Toronto Star advertisement, advertising our toll-free line. This has proven, along with our toll free number, an effective promotional tool for the dollars expended.

Monies were also allocated so that we may again print our winter brochure. One casualty of cost cutting however, was that we will not be distributing the summer guide to seasonal residents. The expected mailing cost could not be justified at this time. However, Alcom marketing is putting the finishing touches on our summer business directory. If you are contacted by Alcom or its representatives please give them your full consideration. This has proven as an effective in house publication to reach visitors and local residents once they are in our community. The directory should be ready for distribution early in June.

Five new members were also presented for approval. Lydiatts Towing, Dr. Benoit, Kushog Lake Marina, LEAD Corporation and Timbers Cottages. Welcome to the chamber.

Ministry of Skills Development grant. Additional funds are needed, however, to cover the cost of bussing the students and supplies. Parents of the students pay a $25 enrolment fee to assist in supply costs.

The cost to bus the students to the school was estimated at $2000.

Mrs. Brohman said that last year the ACLD received financial support from area service clubs. She said she expected that support may not be as readily available since a number of major fund raising drives are currently underway.

School board administrator Baker described the program as a valuable one which was on benefit to the students involved. He noted that the board already provides administration, use of the school and some supplies surplus to the school's needs.

7. The Minister has written to the Ontario Minister of Natural Resources to ensure that the province will place a high priority, under the federal-provincial Flood Damage Reduction (FDR) Program, on the mapping of hazardous areas of the Great Lakes shoreline and on related shore damage assessments. Although shoreline management itself is a provincial and local responsibility, this proposal would be possible under the terms of the current federal-provincial FDR Agreement.

tones make them difficult to see until they flit. At those times the wood thrush will give a sharp emphatic "pip pip pip". The veery may betray his presence with a single liquid note, rather like water dripping on a stone.

All thrushes will make voluptuous use of your birdbath. At dusk they will come silently, perch for a minute on a neighbouring branch, test the water like a matron at the beach, begin delicately to splash and then, giving up all pretence, abandon themselves blissfully to splashing.

The travellers have come far to take that bath in your yard. Both the wood thrush and the veery have probably come from somewhere in Central America; the hermit thrush, the hardest after the robin, has probably wintered in Georgia or the Carolinas. Perhaps in Central America they were retreating before chainsaws as the rainforest was cleared for beef cattle grazing land to feed the hamburger addiction of North Americans. On the way north, some have doubtless perished in violent storms; other have succumbed to agricultural sprays. Many broke their necks against the lighted windows of huge buildings which block the natural flight path in every urban area. Natural predators like sharp-shinned and Cooper's hawks will have taken their share.

The lucky ones are bathing in your birdbath. When you start thinking about your property as a sort of refuge for wild things, perhaps you begin to wonder what you could do to make life a little easier for them. You already put out food and a source of water. Perhaps you could protect them from your own little predator, that pretty black and white female cat who just emerged from the cedars with an immature hermit thrush. Thousands of young birds are killed each year by domestic cats. Why not put a bell on her collar and keep her inside in the early morning and evening during migration; it is at these times that the migrants come down tired and hungry and are easy prey for an enterprising cat.

More important. Don't call the lawn care people this year. Chemical sprays kill small birds and poison their food of insects and worms. We have seen the dramatic effect on birds at the top of the food chain, like the peregrine falcon. Kay McKeever, the owl lady, tells of feeding her first owl worms from a sprayed orchard; they killed him. There may be occasions when pest infestation make it necessary to take some action. There are relatively safe sprays like rotenone, without the long-lasting effects on the environment. Most problems on small properties can probably be handled without spraying. Time spent digging dandelions by hand or hand-picked grubs off cabbage or tomato plants will seem like time well spent when the robin or the brown thrasher first lead their fledglings to your bath.

Computers unlock history for students

The year is 1784.

The Bartlett family, Nathan, Emily and their three children, are United Empire Loyalists who have come to Canada from the newly formed United States of America to live under the British flag.

As loyalists they have social standing and with them, they have brought a small amount of money.

The idea of the game - for it is a game - is to direct the Bartletts life in Canada so as to increase their wealth, happiness and social standing.

The Bartlett history simulation game is just one of the many ICON computer programs available to the students of Minden's Archie Stouffer Elementary School. Others include mathematical puzzles, word games, geometry lessons, drills for kids with learning disabilities and there's even a program for creative writing.

The new ICON computer - it was put into place in the school library two years ago - is an excellent educational aid says teacher Nick Pawluch. Because computers have become so important in our society, Pawluch and many educators like him believe that it is imperative that children become "computer literate."

But besides learning to use a modern tool, students at Archie Stouffer are also getting the benefit of one of the most important developments in the field of education to come along in the last 50 years, Pawluch believes.

"It teaches kids to think," he says. "To answer the questions posed in the various programs, students have to be systematic and logical. They have to break down problems and solve them step by step."

To illustrate his point, Pawluch plugs in one of the seven video display terminals into a logo program, an exercise designed for young children to learn their basic geometry.

A turtle appears on the screen. Pawluch types out a simple formula and the turtle draws a line on the screen. Pawluch repeats the formula three times with slight variations and the turtle completes a square.

"It's easy," he says. "And once the student has mastered that, it's only a short step to combine those four formulas into one formula and with a variation, do this - he types another series of figures and the turtle makes a series of squares, all revolving on an axis."

Not fragile

"The important thing," he says, "is to get kids used to computers. So many people are apprehensive about computers - they're afraid to touch them, believing they'll break or blow up if they punch the wrong key."

"And that's wrong. This gets kids used to computers, gets them to learn that these things will be with us in the future."

Pawluch explains that the developments that have taken place in the field over the last five years have been enormous. "Five years ago, no one dreamed we'd have this kind of operating power," he says pointing at the ICON system.

Although technologists have not yet succeeded in creating an "intelligent" computer - one that can make decisions on the basis of intuition as well as logic - they're pretty close.

Right now, Pawluch explains, Toshiba has a computer on the market with a 10 mega-byte memory, a memory capable of storing 10 million pieces of information. "And it could fit in a brief case," he says.

At the top of the line is the American Department of Defense's CRAY super-computer which can make 40 quadrillion simple calculations in a nanosecond. There are few like it in North America.

But developments on computers are happening so quickly, he says, that nothing stays at the top of the line for long.

A case in point is ICON. When it was designed by Burrows it was state of the art. Now, although the company has yet to complete its line of ICON programs, the computer is already in many ways obsolete. Some newer, less expensive computers are more versatile.

"We try to give every student from grades three to eight at least two hours a week on the computer," he says.

All levels

There are learning programs for children at all levels. For those in lower grades there is Logo and other simple word and number exercises. Older students get more advanced programs, such as Micro-news, in which they learn to design and write a newspaper, and Refugees in the Wild with the Bartlett family.

"One of the hardest things we have to instill in the kids," explains Pawluch, "is that the computer is not just another toy. So many of them are used to playing video games on home computers and in stores that they tend to look at ICON the same way."

"We teach the kids that the computer is a tool for working. We encourage them to use it for their homework, to write their notes, to store their marks."

In many ways, the computer is as much a tool for teachers as it is for students. For example, one ICON program makes use of the computer's speech capacity (ICON is programmed to talk) to help children who have trouble recognizing words. If the child can't read the word printed on the screen, the computer can help the student along by pronouncing it.

Thus the student gets the individual help he needs while the teacher aids other children with their problems.

But, by far the best program, says Pawluch, is the Bartlett history simulation exercise.

In order to do well with the program, the student has to understand Canadian history. The Bartlett saga begins shortly after the American Revolution and continued (though Burrows hasn't yet completed all ten programs) until 1900.

Each stage of the exercise requires the student to pick a number of courses of action for the family. To pick correctly, they must be aware of the events of the day.

"For instance," explains Pawluch, "at one point the Bartletts are working in their fields when they see Indians approaching."

"Among the choices offered by the computer are that they prepare to fight, or that they make signs of friendship."

"If the student elects to fight, he learns he's made the wrong choice. Because the next message to flash on to the monitor is that Indians of the Niagara Peninsula where the Bartlett's live, were Iroquois, a tribe friendly to the Loyalists, but this particular group were angered at the Bartlett's hostility."

He says the students using the program learn about history and develop their imagination at the same time - if they use it properly.

"Of course," he says, "there are some students who manage to kill off the whole Bartlett family within the first few minutes of plugging into the program."

Archie Stouffer Grade 8 student Jerry Bull gets some help at the school's ICON computer from teacher Nick Pawluch.

Council backs Stainton motel development

About 15 Minden residents attended a public meeting in the municipal chambers last Thursday night to hear Brown Owl Restaurant owners John and Kathy Stainton's plans to build a motel. The meeting had been called to hear any objections to the undertaking.

Stainton has applied for a zoning change for a lot behind his restaurant and the OPP station where the motel will be located.

Anson, Hindon and Minden Reeve Sinc Nesbitt told the meeting that "no matter how much we may object to the motel, we need the development it will bring to the area more."

Young people are leaving Minden, Nesbitt said, because there are no jobs. "We've got to get jobs for them," he said.

One village resident who attended the meeting, Walter Sawyer, said he didn't want the motel because the drainage in the area is already bad and new development would likely cause water to be backed up on his property, which is adjacent to the motel lot.

Nesbitt said the municipality would deal with the problem.

Sawyer also objected that the motel with a bar (a 24 seat pub is planned) would increase the noise level in the neighbourhood and cause nearby properties to be devalued.

Stainton argued that his pub would be too small to have an effect on the noise level. He said his pub would not be in competition with the Rockcliffe and the Dominion Hotel because it is being designed to accommodate motel guests only.

The entrance to the motel will be off South Water Street. Stainton explained that besides being very expensive, a highway access would not be so aesthetically pleasing as the planning South Water Street access.

Another village resident who attended the meeting, Margaret Brown, said she was afraid the motel would increase traffic on what she believed was already a dangerous road and inevitably lead to more accidents.

Brown said that on a number of occasions already she has seen cars go off the road and into the river.

Edna Trumbull, a Prince Street resident, complained that the noise level in the neighbourhood is already bad, and that a new motel would only make it worse.

"If I knew the rules to baseball, I could keep score from my front yard on the games at the arena," Trumbull said.

Nesbitt argued that Minden "desperately needs development." He said Haliburton Village takes what development it can get "and we must do the same."

Village property owners who will be affected by the motel will have an opportunity to raise objections formally after council passes a bylaw granting Stainton a zoning change for his motel.

For a period of 35 days following the passing of the bylaw, council will accept letters from objectors.

Officer hired

The Haliburton County Board of Education has hired a new business administrator for the school system.

The board formally endorsed the hiring of James E. Bradley at its Tuesday evening meeting. He will replace Stanley Baker, the current administrator.

The new administrator is a chartered accountant who is a resident of Aurora. He is employed by the accounting firm of Thorne, Ernst and Whinney where his work included the auditing of school boards and municipalities.

Mr. Bradley owns a cottage on Koshlong Lake. He is married and has two elementary school aged children.

He will commence his duties with the board June 1.

Sewer grant

The first provincial payment toward the construction of the extension of the Haliburton sewer system has been announced.

MPP John Eakins and Jim Bradley, the Minister of Environment, announced last week that a $97,875 payment has been made by the province. The Ontario government has committed $1,496,000 to the project's $1,994,000 estimated cost.

The extension will bring sewer services to properties west of the village along Highway 121 and north Kashagawigamog Road, enhancing the many resorts in this area.

Construction on the extension is set to start this summer.

Other participating high schools included I.E. Weldon of Lindsay with 356 points, Lindsay Collegiate with 331 points and Bethany Hills private school, with 11 points.

The top three finishers in each event will take part in the Kawartha championship track and field meet scheduled for Thursday at Trent University in Peterborough. The athletes who will be representing HHSS, their events, placing and results are listed below:

Is your child safe?

Each year thousands of children become victims of accidents in and around the home. You can reduce your child's risk of injury by ensuring a safe environment.

The federal government passed stringent new safety standards for cribs last fall. Make sure you select a crib that meets all safety standards, and keep it in good condition.

Remember that children's sleepwear and clothing can burn easily and that your child should not play near fireplaces, stoves or heaters. Polo-style pyjamas are safer than loose fitting nightgowns.

Provide close supervision if your child uses a walker, especially near stoves and electric cords, and ensure that stairways are closed off.

For more information on how you can protect your child, please contact the nearest office of Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada.

We all share the forests

May 3-9 is National Forest Week. Various groups and individuals across Canada will be observing it. Tree plantings, Mill tours, Walks in the forest. Exhibits and displays. Special publications. Buttons. Posters.

It is a big job to reach all Ontario citizens with a forestry message. Too bad too, for we all share in the forest benefits. We do not all realize it. Most of us do not do enough to help our forests continue their useful activities.

Many people share the forest physically. Hikers, campers, loggers, outfitters, trappers, hunters, naturalists, teachers, students, and skiers are to be found out there. Many share in other ways. The newspaper publisher, the house builder, the forest land owner and the office secretary have an interest - whether they recognize it or not - in green, healthy, productive forests and the products we get from them.

And that is not likely to change. In spite of all the new inventions we still have a great dependence upon our forests. Our dependence is likely to grow.

We are lucky in Ontario to have such a rich forest heritage. It has changed through the years. We have used our forests a lot and not always wisely. As the demands upon the forests grow we need to pay more attention to their care and wise use. Tomorrow's forests are today's challenge. That is what National Forest week is all about. The Ontario Forestry Association sees it as a time to think about forests. To take stock of their importance.

Monday, May 4, 1987

To be sure our plans for tomorrow's forests are appropriate.

Forests ... a shared resource...by all of us. Everyone's responsibility. Make it yours.

Uncertainty haunts trip to Nicaragua

David Phillips leans back in his chair and smiles anxiously.

"I mean, when you think about it, there're so many things that could go wrong," he says.

He smooths out the map in front of him on the kitchen table and takes another sip of coffee.

He begins again: "You could get malaria, dysentery, food poisoning...the water's not fit to drink. And then of course you could get a bullet between the eyes."

Phillips is going to Nicaragua for ten days (he left yesterday) with an American relief organization that builds houses for the needy in countries all over the world. Along with eight other Habitat for Humanity volunteers, he'll be stationed in the remote town of Chinandega where bugs, tropical diseases and guerrillas permitting, he'll put up a simple building - "Just four walls and a roof," he explains, "the basics for a family to live in."

Each team member is responsible for a portion of the cost of the building, about $150, and his airfare and food while in Nicaragua.

One of the biggest problems to be faced, he's learned, is the heat. Midway between the Tropic of Cancer and the Equator, Nicaragua is a country where the daytime temperature consistently stays above the 30 degree mark. Rain is frequent and heavy and much of the country is covered by dense jungle.

And then of course there's the war between the U.S. backed Contras and loyal government forces. Foreign nationals have been caught in the crossfire before and in all likelihood more will die. However, Phillips has been instructed that he has little to worry on this account. The area he'll be working in is mostly swamp and the Contras consider it too hazardous to fight in.

He admits there are a lot of reasons not to go and in fact he's having second thoughts about the whole thing - but he's not backing out.

"I feel strongly about going, about doing something to help the Nicaraguans," he says.

And then he explains: "When you hit a certain point in your life, you have to ask yourself a question. You have to say, am I going to keep on doing what I'm doing until I retire, or am I going to try and do something about the suffering in the world."

Phillips is the first to point out that his efforts won't solve any global problems. "It's no big deal," he says. "I'm just going off for a week to help build a shack."

It was last February that he first got the idea to go to Nicaragua, he believes. He was listening to the radio and heard an interview with a 75 year old man who'd just returned from his second trip with Habitat for Humanity to the Central American country.

"I thought, hell, if a 75 year old man can do it, then surely I can," he says.

So Phillips called up Habitat to find out how he could get involved. And he also called his friend Gerry Feltham (both men are directors of HAVE) to see if he would be interested to go. Feltham said he thought it was a great idea.

The two recently returned from a meeting in Toronto where they were introduced to their fellow team members and briefed on what to expect once they arrive in Nicaragua.

"I know it's going to be hard," says Phillips. "But the locals will provide some help and they'll also put us up."

To deal with the lack of good drinking water, he plans to bring a supply of juice boxes along. As well, he's going to take lots of peanut butter, to ensure that his diet isn't lacking.

Minden resident David Phillips displays some of the medical supplies donated by area doctors, that he will take to Nicaragua.

Another item Phillips plans to bring is medicine. He's well aware that as a poor and embattled country, Nicaragua is going to be short of this. So he's visited a number of Haliburton County doctors to ask for donations. They responded generously and Phillips now has three large boxes of everything from constipation remedies to penicillin.

Though he's against the American's support of the Contras, Phillips is concerned more with the general suffering of the Nicaraguan people.

"I believe politics are important, but it's also important not to get confused," he says. "There's a big difference between being politically concerned and shooting people, and being politically concerned and giving people a place to live.

"It's a small world and we all have a responsibility not to kill each other."

April was another pretty nice month. Considerable snow during the first week, but by April 7 it was all gone. Then we had above average sunny warm weather for a couple of weeks. Very heavy frost on the morning of April 25 brought us back to reality and much cooler weather for the remainder of the month.

Note highest and lowest temperatures 29.5 and -14.5 April 1985 high was 29 and the low was -14.

May and June are noted for quite severe thunder storms so keep an eye on any that may come drifting across the county from the South West, West or North West.

Education briefs.

Board considers future of course

The following items were among a number discussed at the April 28 meeting of the Haliburton County Board of Education.

The problem of providing a variety of courses with a limited number of staff members was presented to the board by high school principal Andy Hemphill Tuesday evening.

Mr. Hemphill presented a detailed list of courses which he suggested should be cancelled or combined with other courses next year. A lack of student interest, in numbers, and the limit imposed by the size of the school's teaching staff, resulted in the need for the action, he explained. There are 40 teachers at the high school (Later in the meeting the board approved the hiring of an additional teacher at HHSS).

In his presentation, the principal noted that the growing size of classes in a number of core area subjects would likely utilize all the instruction time gained by the addition of the new teacher, meaning those courses marked for potential deletion would still be cancelled. He indicated there could be a need to have himself and the school's vice principal take on teaching assignments.

One course which has been named as a candidate for cancellation, a senior English Literature course, has attracted the attention of a number of parents and trustees. According to the figures presented, the course only had 5 registrants. Since it is a non-compulsory course, Hemphill had suggested it be one of those not offered next year.

The principal noted that anyone interested in the course could take it by correspondence.

Members of the board, obviously reacting to concerns expressed by parents, pointed out that while the correspondence option exists with all courses offered, in the past it had proven unsuccessful.

It was also pointed out that the students with less of an aptitude for the senior science and math courses could see their grade averages drop if the English Literature course was not available to them.

The board asked the principal to study the different courses of action open to the board, and bring the matter up for discussion again at the May meeting.

Portables

The board has approved the spending of $3200 to cover the cost of renting and installing two portable classrooms at Archie Stouffer Elementary School in Minden. The additional teaching space is necessary because of the growing student population at the school.

The structures are expected to be set in place over the summer and ready for use next September.

Scarred windshield could create glare

by Doreen Hawman

Repeated impact on your vehicle's windshield from pebbles, dust and dust particles, flying insects, scratches caused by ice scrapers and defective wipers, result in a kind of "haze". This is not evident in daylight, but can become critical at night when the glare of approaching headlights shine on the numerous nicks and scratches in the windshield surface.

Dr. Alwin Timmerman of the Auto Sight Safety Research Institute in Cologne, West Germany, points out that for a tired nighttime driver, this could make a difference between safe and unsafe driving conditions, especially in bad weather. Tests at the institute showed the diffused light obscured objects near the light source. Several studies show related windshield damage to the driver's response time and visual perception problems to accidents.

Dr. Timmerman has invented a Stray Light analyzer to measure windshield wear and damage. The device is presently being tested in Sweden. Perhaps there is a need for manufacturers to evaluate the windshields being installed in motorized vehicles today.

One gear is all this motorcyclist needs

Bob Marsh's 750 Kawasaki has only one gear - third.

That's because as a professional motorcycle hill climber he needs only one gear. At the start of a race he gets his bike going, aims it ("You just concentrate on a spot at the summit") and an assistant flicks a lever engaging his solitary gear.

Marsh estimates that on a typical race hill it takes him 6.9 seconds to go 500 feet.

The problem though is that he and other hillclimbers don't get many opportunities to compete in their sport in Canada.

Besides the regular Bill's Hills hillclimb competitions in Wilberforce, there is little else. Marsh isn't sure Bill's Hills is not the only Canadian hillclimb race.

He believes that hillclimbing is an exciting sport that has the potential to become popular in this country. All that's needed, he says, is a bit of publicity and a few more races to attract the interest of people who would enjoy the sport.

Marsh explains that in the United States, hillclimbing is a major event. "There are many races and at some of them you get as many as 4000 spectators," he says. "And that includes the media as well."

There is even an association of professional hillclimbers in the States, with 42 members. Marsh is one of five Canadians in the association.

A contractor living just outside Kinmount, Marsh makes his living during the week. But on weekends he packs up his truck with his motorcycle in the back and regularly drives thousands of miles to take part in races across the United States.

Though he doesn't have the financial backing many of the other racers can boast, or so many opportunities to practice his sport, Marsh makes a very respectable showing. "I usually come about 15th or 16th in the larger American races," he says.

But at Bill's Hills last year, Marsh came first in every event he competed in but one, where he came second.

The trick to being a good hillclimber, he says, is to be a good bike mechanic. "You have to be able to tear your machine apart and rebuild it between races," he says. "That way you can practice and become good at your sport."

He remembers one race last year where he virtually rebuilt his engine on a Saturday and managed to make it to a big race in Maine the following Sunday. "I don't think I did very well, but in this sport you get a lot of satisfaction out of just getting to the events and talking with the other racers," he says.

But he is not discouraged. Last Saturday Marsh went to Orillia, where with the Canadian Motorcycle Association he held a meeting to find out if there is enough interest in Canada to start a professional Canadian hillclimbing association.

"All we need to start," he says, "is just eight people who would be interested in becoming members. Once we've got a bank account then we can start moving."

A professional association would help the sport by promoting interest and because the members would my bike flew 200 feet into the air...'

Hillclimb plans

For the past year, Marsh has been working on a plan to start a new hillclimb race in Canada. The site of the event would be a 15 acre property he owns in Lutterworth Township at the corner of Highway 121 and 35.

Tentatively, his intention is to stage two races there on the small hill - it's 600 feet high but Marsh would build it bigger - every year. One, he says, would be run for cash prizes and all the proceeds from the other would go to the fight against cancer.

Marsh believes that as well as helping to popularize the sport, another Canadian hillclimb race, this one in Haliburton County, would boost tourism in the area.

"If one of the races were held over the Ride for Sight weekend, it would add to the charity event and give motorcyclists another reason to participate in the Ride," he says. "And if the cancer race was held over the Ride weekend, with a natural audience of 2,000, we could raise as much as $10,000 for the cancer society."

As yet, however, Marsh has not been given permission by Lutterworth council to hold a motorcycle pay fees, races held by the association could be run for significant cash prizes. And of course winners' purses would attract riders from south of the border.

Marsh's enthusiasm is contagious.

Listening to him talk, you'd think he dreams about hillclimbing and motorcycles.

One look at his vehicle and you can see why. Still in the process of being rebuilt, it sits only partially assembled on the floor of his garage. The frame - all hand built and painted a bright red - has been stretched so that the centre of balance is close to the ground.

The four cylinder engine has been cleaned and stripped. Everything has been taken out of the transmission but its one gear. And the engine has been converted to run on a special high-power fuel, 90 per cent methyl hydrate, 10 per cent nitro methane.

But the trick, says Marsh, the thing that puts him out in front at a race, is a canister of nitrous oxide. Commonly called laughing gas, this substance gives a timely kick - an extra six per cent of horse power - when he releases it into his engine.

The nitrous oxide enters the fuel line when Marsh turns the throttle up full.

Motorcycle hillclimber Bob Marsh makes a few adjustments to his 750 Kawasaki.

"You don't feel it for a second," he says, "and then suddenly - Pow! - it hits and you go."

It can be the key to doing well in a competition. But if the rider is unfamiliar with it, it can also lead to disaster. Marsh explains, "the first time I tried it, my bike flew 200 feet into the air - with me on it."

Since then, however, he's learned a lot. He knows what his machine is capable of and he's become skilled enough at his sport to be the best hillclimber in Ontario. And now his goal is to introduce other people to the sport.

G'day! We apologize for missing last week's edition. But with tests homework and track and field last Thursday, time wasn't on our side.

As you read in last week's edition, the school's track and field meet was held on Thursday April 22. We thought the rainy weather of last year's meet (which was, at times, a steady down-pour) would repeat itself. Luckily it only sprinkled. There were also strong intermittent winds, which blew in a direction helping some results in the throwing events!

The competitors all tried their best and the ones who placed first, second or third moved on to the Kawartha West meet held at the school last Thursday. Schools from Lindsay, Fenelon Falls and Bethany Hills and other local areas came to compete in this regional event. Winners here will move on to the Kawartha meet, which will take place this Thursday.

SAC elections were held last Tuesday in home rooms. For president the nominees are: Jamie Bruce, Darryl Goodall and Andrew Milne. The results showed that Darryl Goodall shall be the school's president for the 1987-88 school year.

For social convener, the nominees were: Dave Arnot, Kiera Connelly and Kim Hicks. Kim Hicks was elected.

The poster campaign went well. For about a week, the student body was subjected to a harsh electioning by all the candidates. New 'wallpaper' was put up around the school (except on the forbidden painted areas) in the form of posters. Some pretty good and catchy slogans were thought up!

Looking for a summer job?

Outside the guidance office, on the bulletin board.

student job opportunities are being listed. Check these if you're interested in employment during the summer hols.

Last week was nutrition week at the school and various means of public awareness were set up. Among the eye-openers were films on good health shown at noon, granola bar sales and a display by the library.

This is a final reminder of the Elim Hall and Level Heads concert to be held at the school on Friday, May 8 at 8 p.m. It's $4 in advance and $6 at the door. Go and have a tonne of fun!

It's spring, the time of year when puddles are everywhere and dandelions are sprouting. It is also the time of rain and when it rains, to think that it is a 'silent killer' is almost laughable. Many students (and citizens of the county) think that it isn't as bad as the 'experts' lead you to believe. However, lakes, trees, fish (imminently humans) are being damaged affected or killed at the hands from something as 'harmless' as the rain falling outside.

Haliburton County depends on its Natural Resources for our economy. Where would we be without trees? Think of the Black Forest in Germany where all of the trees are being either seriously damaged or killed. Locally, on April 12, a rainfall from the United States recorded a pH of 3.9. Anything under a pH of 4.0 is considered dangerous and very harmful. Please think about it. Action must be taken now. It is not an issue to be taken lightly.

Our fellow 'reporter' Dianne Garbutt will return from her holiday in Florida and return to the current dreary weather next week.

Ladies sweep into spring

- submitted -

On April 4 the ladies of the Minden Curling Club held their annual Sweep into Spring Bonspiel with 16 teams participating.

The winner of the Kawartha Dairy Trophy was a Minden rink skipped by Cheryl Murdoch with Shirley Colliss, Jackie Chillman and Jean Scott. Along with lovely plaques, presented by Opal Crowe, the girls each received 2 litres of maple syrup.

A Mississauga rink skipped by Sheila Elston and assisted by Haliburton imports Barb Ramsay, Jane Rosenberg and Kathy Lloyd placed second.

In third place was a rink from little-known Gould's Crossing, skipped by Gwen Cox with Hazel Maxwell, Joyce Wiltshire and Isobel Lewis.

Due to the popularity of this bonspiel and many ladies being unable to enter, it is hoped to organize a bonspiel for November. Thanks to Cheryl Murdoch and her committee, for another successful Sweep into Spring. See you all next year!

MNR advise hunters to apply for moose tags

The Ministry of Natural Resources has issued a reminder for moose hunters that they have less than two weeks to apply for 1987 moose tag licence draw. The deadline for applications to be in is 5 p.m. May 15.

According to the information provided by the MNR, the applications may be submitted at any office of the ministry. Preference in the draw will be given to hunters who applied last year, but were unsuccessful in the tag draw.

In addition to meeting the deadline, hunters are also reminded to ensure the applications are completed accurately and completely, including the Wildlife Management Unit (WMU) desired. It is noted that the number of tags available in each WMU are adjusted annually to reflect the size of the available herd in that area.

In the two WMU covering the main Haliburton County area, the following allocations have been made for the coming season. In WMU 54, 480 bulls and 95 cows for a total of 575; and in WMU 56, 105 bulls and 35 cows for a total of 140.

For more information on the moose tag draw, hunters are advised to contact the Minden District office of the Ministry of Natural Resources, Highway 35, Minden.

Walks to good health

K. Hodgson-McMahon
Let's get active with all this spring sunshine. Calling all older adults to put on your comfortable shoes and start counting your steps.

Haliburton County Home Support Services Drop-In Centre would like to help the urge to become more active and have organized a walking group. This group will meet once a week to record how far each individual is walking on their own during the week. Then there will be a weekly walk for fellowship, encouragement and fun. (This walk will be geared for social and as such will be about half a mile in length). You are all encouraged to start at your own pace, (walk a half mile before you start counting), distance and and do as often as possible.

There will be a cost of $5 to enter due to the grand finale of the walk when there will be a picnic and there will be prizes for each of the top ten walkers in the county. Hopefully this walk will take place in five locations: Minden, Haliburton, Gooderham, Wilberforce and Cardiff.

So far we have a volunteer convener to organize and plan the weekly walk, do the logging of each individual's weekly progress and offer encouragement. In Haliburton, Dorothy Clements will be leading the walk on Thursday afternoon's at 2:00 p.m. from the Drop-In Centre. We are in need of volunteers for the other communities. If no volunteers come forth and you reside outside of Haliburton Village do not hesitate to call 457-2171 and register and arrangements will be made to include you. So Haliburton County let's get moving and see how far we can walk by August 21, 1987.

My Mom

I watched my Mother with my child at play,
I was reminded of another day.
When she was younger; her child on her knee;
And I thought how lucky I am to be me.
For she loved me and all through the years
She encouraged my dreams and lessened my fears.
Oh life gets so busy, time slips away,
And my Mom grows dearer with each passing day.
Yes, I've told her I love her, the question is when?
Today's a good day to tell her again!

Well Folks! Lovely weather, it seems like summer is here. The ladies from Haliburton Anglican Church brought our tea party last week. It was very good as usual, and afterwards we were entertained by two different contests by the ladies, Linda English read two nice pieces. It was a nice change for us, and much enjoyed.

We extend our sympathy to the family and friends of Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Bluett who passed away this past week at Hyland Crest.

Our services last Sunday were taken by Mr. Burgess and on Tuesday morning by Rev. Moll of Minden United Church.

Mrs. Buttery has a visit with her brother last week.

Ada Lewis attended the Prentice-Martin wedding at Pickering on Saturday.

Dr. Good called in last Friday to see some folks, he was on his way to the airport for a holiday in Spain.

Mrs. Ross Faulkner of Coboconk called on me Wednesday afternoon for a brief visit. Jean Taylor is spending Sunday with her niece and family who have just returned from Florida. Winnie Barnum was with some of her family last Sunday for dinner at Haliburton.

The movies Monday night were "Me and Sam McGee" and "Louisburg". Both were enjoyed very much.

Hyland Crest welcomes a new resident, Mrs. Jarvis. Hope she will like it here.

The school children came and played the first act of Anne of Green Gables for us. It was very well done and enjoyed by all.

See you next week.

Develop dignity in young people

by Faith Aggett

The word dignity is often heard these days. Democracy stands for human dignity. It is rather amazing that our immediate response to the definition would have a tendency to refer to humans of the grown-up size. The smaller the person the less we worry about it.

Yet children have a great sense of dignity of their own. They can't define what it is, but they certainly know when it has been violated!

When we stop to reflect for a moment, we realize there are a number of double standards. "Do as I say, not as I do" is often the adult stand-by. Take for example the simple case of the stranger who stops the parent along the street to coo over and pinch the cheek of the child. The parent proudly smiles and rebukes the child for any outburst for being rude! Yet should a stranger stop an older child or an adult for a chat and, heaven forbid, reach out and touch us, we'd most likely put up our barriers against this "overly-friendly" person.

Often too, the laughter of adults carries to the ears of the youngster, the ring of ridicule. Like adults children enjoy "making" a joke and appreciate admiration for their wit and cleverness, but they do not enjoy being the butt of the jokes. Cuteness in children is totally an adult perspective. The children themselves are unaware that the quality exists until the reactions of grown-ups inform them.

Of all the qualities of the young which irritate their elders, that consistent "No" can, upon occasion, bring the most solid parent to the screaming point. When you put the whole matter into perspective, it does take a good bit of courage and plenty of stubbornness for someone as small as a two year old to say "No" to someone more than twice his size.

A good deal of youthful defiance is directed less toward the nature of the command than the way it is expressed. Often a courteous "please" or "thank you" takes the edge off the request. Better yet, word the directions as statements (e.g. "It is time to go now" vs "Would you like to go now?") which do not leave openings for discussion or debate.

Nine times out of ten the small rebel having registered his protest goes ahead and does what is asked of him anyway. He just felt compelled to assert his presence in the world before complying.

Most of all, children want respect for their emotions however unreasonable or even ridiculous these may seem to an adult. What a child fears may seem nonsense to the adult but his fear is no less real. And frustration is frustration whether you be an adult or a child except we adults have a larger vocabulary to express our emotions and tantrums are socially unacceptable.

Dignity is respect for what one is, feels and thinks. It does not compare one with others for better or for worse. The more big people respect the dignity of little people, the less trouble they will have with them.
